ACADEMIC COURSES COORDINATED

Patient Centered Care 1 2020 – Present

This course is the first in a series of courses that imparts the knowledge, skills, behaviors necessary to provide patient-centered care. The course introduces the first-year student to foundational patient-centered pharmacy care, drug information, and traditional community pharmacy practice. Students learn basic information about selected medications, the role of the pharmacist in patient care, logistics of pharmacy practice, and elements of professional readiness. Students are introduced to pharmacy calculations, terminology, and information resources. Students are also introduced to concepts of interprofessional education and collaborative practice.

Patient Centered Care 2 2020 – Present

This course is a continuation of the series designed to introduce the first-year student to patient-centered pharmacy care and lay a foundation for pharmacotherapy in the second and third professional years. Students continue to build upon basic medical terminology, information about selected medications including brand, generic, primary use, and skills needed in pharmacy practice. This course also contains elements of professional readiness, and students will apply concepts of interprofessional education and collaborative practice.

Patient Centered Care 3 2021 – Present

This course is a continuation of the Patient-Centered Care course series designed to introduce immunization and sterile compounding techniques. It is intended to prepare students for introductory pharmacy practice experiences. Students continue to build upon basic medical terminology and information about selected medications. They also complete the APhA Immunization Certificate program in this course.

Self-Care Therapeutics 2020 – Present

This course examines the role of nonprescription therapeutic, preventive, and testing products as well as durable medical equipment and medical supplies in the pharmacotherapy and medical management of patients. Students examine the evidence base for the use of over-the-counter (OTC) medicines and other nonprescription therapies in the management of minor disease states. Issues of advice and recommendations when responding to patient symptoms are also addressed.
